

Prime Minister Claude Joseph is the Acting President of Haiti

Will Lead Country Through the Scheduled September Elections

Haitian Constitution – Prime Minister Claude Joseph legally assumed the responsibility of Acting President in accordance with Article 149 of the 1987 Constitution on Wednesday, July 7th. Article 149 states, “in the event of the vacancy of the Presidency of the Republic either by resignation, dismissal or in the event of duly established permanent physical or mental incapacity, the Council of Ministers, under the Presidency of the Prime Minister, exercises the Executive Power until the election of another President.”

Article 149 adds that “the ballot for the election of the new President of the Republic for the time remaining to run takes place at least sixty (60) days and one hundred and twenty (120) days at most after the opening of the vacancy, in accordance with the Constitution and the electoral law.” Prime Minister Joseph and the Council of Ministers will shepherd Haiti to a national election within this 60 to 120 day-timeline.

Presidential and parliamentary elections will be held in September 2021 and, if necessary, run-off elections will be held in November 2021. This timeline closely tracks with the elections schedule President Moise had already planned and set in motion for September 26th, and therefore should place no further undue burden.

U.S. State Department – On Wednesday, July 7th, U.S. Secretary of State Tony Blinken spoke with Prime Minister Claude Joseph to extend his condolences to President Jovenel Moise’s family and the Haitian people, wish First Lady Martine Moise a full and speedy recovery, and reaffirm the U.S.’s commitment to Haiti.<sup>1</sup> During a press conference the same day, State Department Spokesperson Ned Price told reporters Prime Minister Claude Joseph had assumed charge and that the U.S. government was in regular contact with Prime Minister Joseph. Price stated that “the United States calls on all political parties, civil society groups, and stakeholders to echo what we’ve heard from Acting Prime Minister Claude Joseph’s call for calm and to work together in the wake of this tragedy to ensure peace and democratic governance.”<sup>2</sup> Price also tweeted a similar message from his official account: “The United States calls on all political parties, civil society groups, and stakeholders to echo Acting Prime Minister @claudejoseph03’s call for calm and to work together in the wake of this tragedy to ensure peace and democratic governance in Haiti.”<sup>3</sup>

The following exchanges are three excerpts of State Department Spokesperson Ned Price's comments on Haiti to reporters on Wednesday, July 7th.<sup>7</sup>

Excerpt 1:

MR PRICE: I just want to make sure everyone is paying attention.

I obviously want to stop – start with the situation in Haiti. The United States strongly condemns, as you heard from President Biden earlier today, the assassination of President Jovenel Moise and the attack on First Lady Martine Moise in Haiti. We extend our deepest condolences to President Moise's family and his loved ones and to the people of Haiti in the midst of this tragedy.

Those who seek to accomplish their political goals through violence and by subverting the rule of law will not succeed in thwarting the Haitian people and their desire for a better – for a brighter future. We urge Haitian authorities to bring those responsible to justice. The United States calls on all political parties, civil society groups, and stakeholders to echo what we've heard from Acting Prime Minister Claude Joseph's call for calm and to work together in the wake of this tragedy to ensure peace and democratic governance.

Excerpt 2:

MR PRICE: There is – Acting Prime Minister Claude Joseph has assumed charge. What we know and what we will continue to do is to preserve Haiti's democratic institutions. We know that by preserving Haiti's democratic institutions, that is key to restoring peace. At this time, we don't have any updates to announce in terms of our assistance, but I can assure you that our partnership with the Haitian people and with their elected government will continue. As you know, that partnership has taken many forms in recent months; in, of course, recent years. In January of this year we announced 75.5 million for – in support for a wide range of issues, and that includes democratic governance, health, education, agricultural development, strengthening pre-election activities through the Consortium for Elections and Political Process Strengthening program.

Excerpt 3:

MR PRICE: — Haiti is a partner, and that is how we will treat this relationship. It is how we have treated Haiti, it is how we will going forward. We would echo what we have heard from the acting prime minister, Claude Joseph, in his calls for calm, his calls for the Haitian people to work together to ensure peace, to ensure democratic government. The United States has and will continue to stand by to provide assistance to the Haitian people.

Humeyra.

QUESTION: So on Haiti, the ambassador told us that they – he has been in touch with the State Department and a number of different agencies in U.S. Government. Can you at least say – you just said that you can't give an update on the U.S. assistance, but can you at least say perhaps a new package is being formed and you guys are working on something new on top of these quite little numbers – $5 million, $3 million – that you've just mentioned?

MR PRICE: $75.5 million.

QUESTION: Okay. I missed that, sorry.

MR PRICE: We have been in regular contact with the acting prime minister, Claude Joseph. We are prepared to respond to requests for assistance. Our ambassador to Haiti, Ambassador Sison, has been in regular contact with a range of Haitian officials. She has spoken to the acting director general of the Haitian National Police. Of course, Ambassador Thomas-Greenfield at the UN this morning spoke to Haiti's permanent representative to the UN. We have been, as I said before, in regular contact.
